TREASURER OF UNITED STATES HAS HIS SAY

Believes Automobile And Speed In Living Cause Of Economic Woes

William Alexander Julian has some worth while views regarding "what is the matter with us," attributing most of our economic problems to the present speed in living.

The 71-year-old Treasurer of the United States, who made his fortune as a Cincinnati shoe manufacturer and banker and whose signature now appears on all New Deal dollar bills, recently sailed for a month's vacation in England, after delivering himself of the following views on agriculture and the automobile:

"I've got a farm in Ohio. It's about 1200 acres, and I have a number of tenants on it with nice homes and three acres apiece for farms and livestock. Nary a one has a cow, nary a one has a chicken, nary has a one a pig, and nary a one has a vegetable garden. But every danged one of 'em has an automobile. I reason that no man making $2 a day can afford to run an automobile. It just can't be done on a sound economic basis.

"Well, what's happening on my farm is happening all over the country. The nation has been put on wheels. Everything is mobilized. Through the internal combustion engine the number of human beings who have been thrown out of employment is beyond counting. What are we going to do about it? Well, all I can say about it is that we had better keep our heads as best we can. To my mind it's the most serious proposition in the economic life of the world today."

MANY FAMOUS STABLES TO BE REPRESENTED

New Stars And Future
Champions Will Be Seen In Action

Many new equine performers in the horse show world, including new stars and future champions will be seen in action during the week of the San Mateo County National Horse Show to be held August 8 to 15 at the Menlo Circus Club in Atherton. One by one, famous champions have been retired so that this year, more than ever, a new crop of top show horses will contend in the spirited competitions for $10,000 in prize money and trophies at the Circus Club, it has been announced.

The famous stables of "Why Worry Farm," owned by Mrs. W. P. Roth, president of the horse show, has several new horses now aspiring to follow in the footsteps of Mrs. Roth's sensational performers, "Sweetheart on Parade" and "Chief of Longview." The James F. Waters stables in San Francisco has added many new horses, as has the noted San Diego stables of the Frank G. Belchers. In addition, there are many other fine show horses owned by individuals who are just starting their show string.

Among the many stables from the

ANOTHER LIFE CLAIMED BY MIGHTY PACIFIC OCEAN

Davy Jones' Locker Releases Another Victim—Unidentified Body Found At Sharp Park.

What sinister tragedy accounts for the second unidentified body found on San Mateo County's coasts in as many weeks? That is the question authorities and residents of Sharp Park are asking.

The second body was discovered on the beach near the Sharp Park golf course, Tuesday morning of this week about 6 o'clock, by William Lee of 656 Huron street, San Francisco, who is at present staying at Sharp Park. Lee, immediately upon finding the body, assisted by Dick Plate, tavern owner of Sharp Park, notified Luella D. Pepper, deputy county coroner.

The remains were taken to the Lasswell Undertaking Parlor in Daly City, where an investigation to determine the cause of death and attempt to identify the body was begun.

COUNTY TAX RATE SET AT 85 CENTS

The San Mateo County Board of Supervisors this week set the tax rate for the fiscal year at 85 cents, 20 cents lower than last year.

The rate, said to be the lowest in the history of the county, was made possible by drastic economy in all departments and elimination of several items which were taken care of in the last year's budget, such as the Livestock Pavilion, Colma Creek and other major projects.

A tremendous increase in unexpected revenue from delinquent taxes is also largely responsible for the low rate, records show.

The estimated tax rate of 85 cents is based on last year's assessed valuation, which indicates that the rate may be still lower, as valuations have increased substantially in some sections of the county.

Just what the exact tax will be when all the figures have been tabulated and valuations made has not been determined, but court house attaches indicated it would be reached below the 85 cent figure.

Members of the Board of Supervisors were elected over the low rate, which enabled them to make good their promise to reduce governmental expenses and the resultant reduced taxes.

COUNTY OF SAN MATEO DRAWS HALF MILLION

In San Mateo County, up to and including March 31, 1936, the construction costs for PWA (Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works) non-federal projects totaled $723,685; $220,721 of this amount was used for labor, $444,709 for materials and $58,255 for miscellaneous expenditures. It was announced by Donald Renshaw, State Director for The National Emergency Council.

It was also revealed that for the entire state, construction costs totaled $41,068,488; $13,536,524 was used for labor, $23,498,443 for materials, and $4,033,521 for miscellaneous expenditures.

HORSE SHOWS BRING BROADENING OF VIEW

By J. W. MARCHBANK

One institution of which our citizens can justly be proud is the San Mateo County National Horse Show held each fall down at Atherton. The exhibition, opening this year on Saturday, August 8, is of importance in itself and also from the further angle that it tends to take the thought of our people off their cares and worries of daily life. One reason I maintain Heather Farm is for the purpose of real recreation. The meaning of the word signifies exactly what I have in mind: to re-create. The way I look at it, we create in our working hours and recreate in our leisure time.

Every class at the coming show promises to be interesting. There will be jumpers, hunters, saddle horses of varied gaits and others. I may point out in passing, all are dependent to a large extent for their beauty of line and value to my favorite breed, that of the thoroughbred. In fact, as I have mentioned at other times, the thoroughbred is the foundation of the trotter, the Morgan, the Hackney, the American saddler; in fact, every breed of light horse.

I noted with satisfaction that in the hunter class a week or two ago in the Westchester County Club Show at Rye, New York, Double Entry, a thoroughbred, was first in a hair-breadth decision over His Elegance, another thoroughbred. Don't you ever think all the "close fits" are on the race course; the horse show judge has his work cut out for him often, too. After a careful series of tests in pace and jumping and deliberation on the conformation of the two leading candidates for the blue ribbon, they awarded it to Double Entry, moved somewhat to their decision by the fact His Elegance has a little age on him. The winner is seven years old and the other horse four years older.

The horses owned by Mrs. W. P. Roth, as in other years, will make up one of the principal stables at the coming show. Mrs. Roth has won prizes with her wonderful band throughout the country. In her racing string, campaigned at Tanforan and other tracks, she has the clever California bred Don Roberto and other good ones. She clearly demonstrates her liberality of mind by being a devotee of both the show animal and the racer.

herself and husband, H. Walton Heegstra.

For the past two weeks a large dark police dog has been patrolling the beach in the vicinity where the body was discovered. As he seemed to be getting weaker day after day from lack of food, Mrs. Heegstra attempting to feed the animal. The dog refused to accept any kind of food, apparently being more concerned with trying to locate someone. It was only after the body was found that the dog would eat anything. Did the dog realize that his master could no longer feed him; should the body be that of his master? Did he refuse to accept food from strangers until instinct told him death broke the ties that training and loyalty had instilled in him? Is there any connection between the strange actions of this dog and the unidentified body? Will the identity of the victim released by Davy Jones' locker forever remain another mystery of the mighty Pacific?

These are questions still unanswered.

PEDRO UNIT WORK COMMENCES WITHIN THE NEXT TWO WEEKS

Coastside At Last Comes Into Its Own Rightful
Heritage

Construction of the Pedro Mountain section of the Coastside highway will commence within two weeks, according to the contractors, Granfield, Farrar & Carlin, who are ready to start work immediately upon formal approval of the project of federal PWA officials in Washington.

The contract for grading and surfacing 5.9 miles of the mountain section was awarded last week in Sacramento for $326,254.

Paralleling the old Ocean Shore Railroad most of the route, except at Pedro Point, where it will be above the old road bed, the new highway will eliminate hundreds of sharp curves and the steep grade of the present road.

As was predicted years ago that development of the coastside depends on accessibility, real estate in that section has recently taken a jump in anticipation of convenient traffic. Numerous new businesses have been opened up within the past few months. Extensive improvements to present business houses is also noted.

According to residents of Sharp Park, Rockaway and other coastside communities, since the opening of the Edgmar-Thornton unit, a few weeks ago, traffic has increased more than 200 per cent, with the resultant benefits derived by merchants in that vicinity. Completion of the next unit is expected to definitely put the entire coastside of the county on an equal basis with other communities which now have adequate transportation facilities.

Work on the new unit is expected to require approximately fourteen months to complete.

NEW PRESIDENT IS ELECTED BY CAL. LEAGUE OF MUNICIPALITIES

GIRLS FEATURE
NEW INNOVATION AT FLORAL SHOW

Something New In Way
Of Entertainment Is Promised

Girls—the beautiful ones—always have a place in shows and parades, so it is entirely in accordance with tradition that the 1936 San Mateo County Fiesta will have a girl contest.

The girls will vie with each other; but just how, the Fiesta directors aren't announcing until next week.

It won't be a "queen" contest, Manager Martin Poss promises. It will be something new for a change—and that's where there's a departure from tradition.

Meanwhile, Fred Carlyle was proceeding with plans for the spectacular pageant, which will open the Fiesta on October 8 and be staged nightly for the four days of the fair at Bay Meadows.

More than 300 persons—men, women and school children—will participate in the pageant, which is to tell the tale of an Oriental princess in her search for a prince.

Chief features of the Fiesta will, of course, be the agricultural and floral displays.

But Frederick Weddleton, adviser to the County Fiesta Commission, has stressed the importance of industrial displays.

"We do not intend to neglect the industrial, home building, home appliance and building materials exhibits," he stated.

"San Mateo County's industrial output is an important phase of the Peninsula's existence. Exhibits in this field will be equal to those at any other county fair."

SHORT ILLNESS IS FATAL TO RESIDENT

Private funeral services were conducted from a San Francisco undertaking establishment, Monday morning of this week at 10:30 o'clock, for the late Henry Schumacher of Vista Avenue.

Deceased was a native of Germany and was 60 years of age.

Death ended a brief illness in the Villa Sanatorium.

The surviving relatives are his widow, Julia Schumacher, and two sons, Herman and Albert Schumacher, and a daughter, Mrs. Agnes Jones.

COUNTY DIRECTOR OF MUSIC APPOINTED

Arthur Cunderson of Menlo Park, has been named supervisor and director of the San Mateo County Federal Concert Orchestra, according to word just received from Miss Jervis, state director of WPA Music Projects, from her headquarters in Los Angeles.

Cunderson is a native son, born, reared and educated in the bay area; graduated at the University of California, and has studied violin with Sigmund Beel, also Cesare Thompson.

Succeeds H. H. Smith As Head Of Peninsula Division

At a meeting of the Peninsula Division of the League of California Municipalities, Glen Baker, councilman of San Bruno, was last week elected as president. He succeeds H. H. Smith, former mayor of Daly City and at present candidate for supervisor from the First Township.

Smith retired as mayor of Daly City last April to seek the supervisor post, and, according to the rules of the League, a member cannot hold office in the organization more than 90 days after leaving public office.

Principal speakers at the League meeting last week were Archer Bowden, city attorney for San Jose and Richard Graves of San Francisco, secretary of the state organization. Other speakers to address the gathering were City Manager Earl F. Wisely of San Mateo, Mayor Paul McCarthy of Redwood City and Hugh Pomeroy, advisor to the San Mateo County Planning Commission.

FAVORITES OF THE MIKE ARE TO BE HEARD

Radio Fans Are Attracted To Baden Races By Popular Stars

Irving Kennedy and Betty Kelly, who three years ago comprised one of the most popular radio teams on the Pacific Coast, will be brought together again by Baden Kennel Club tomorrow (Saturday) night. The two National Broadcasting Company artists will sing between races, accompanied by Fred Lamb and his orchestra. Duets, which thrilled the network listeners before Kennedy left the coast for a successful engagement in New York, will be heard once more over the public address system at the South San Francisco track when the two stars stand in the grand stand spotlight.

Hundreds of ardent radio fans have been attracted to the greyhound track each Saturday by the personal appearance of their favorite star.

The racing program, according to Presiding Judge H. M. Barton, will be one of the best of the season. All of the great racing dogs in training at the South San Francisco track are now in top form, he revealed. Crafty Boy, the All-Florida champion, won in sensational time earlier in the week, and Happy Laddie, the 1935 champion, returned to the races after a lay off occasioned by an injury. Andrew Pride and Mike Andrews, the two native San Mateo County hounds, still rank with the tops and may carry off the championship if they can stave off two fast youngsters, Commodore Caress and Patricia Backlash, both of whom are now running with tremendous speed.

Never before have so many high calibre hounds been matched in one greyhound meeting, without a single dog standing out over his fellows. The races have reached a peak of interest because of the keen competition at all distances.

greatly intrigues children is the butterfly which forms the pocket.

Notice how simple it is to put on, merely slipped over the head and tied at each side. Mothers find it a great help because it can be used as an apron over a frock, which must be kept clean, or worn instead of a frock. The panties to match are an asset—they have the comfortable French yoke top and stay snug

OPPOSITION'S ERRORS TO ELECT ROOSEVELT

By J. W. MARCHBANK
Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work

When a jockey tries to ride more than one horse in a race he gets into a peck of trouble. If he persists, he may even find himself hors de combat.

Alf. Landon is a politician of that sort. He essayed a bit of circus stunting in the California primaries. As will be recalled there were two Landon tickets, one the Hearst-Landon combination, and the other nominally uninstructed but really the Chester Rowell-Landon ticket, as it turned out at the convention.

In regard to the straddling of Landon, Oswald Garrison Villard, the well known publicist, recently said in The Nation:

"There is no doubt that Landon told Rowell to go ahead before he yielded to Hearst and that he tried to ride both horses. It cost the Rowell group $75,000 to beat that Hearst ticket, but beat it they did. I am told that a lot of money came into the state of California from the East to help the Hearst ticket. Who put it up? Was it Hearst? And is Hearst going to be allowed to contribute large sums to the Republican campaign fund?"

The best of it is all of this is from a man apparently not a Roosevelt supporter. Villard prides himself on trying to discover the truth about politics and writing fearlessly after he thinks he has discovered it. He finds that the Republican ticket is a Hearst ticket and must be so considered until both Landon and Frank Knox, the vice presidential candidate, disavow the publisher. As he points out, so far neither has done that little thing.

The Democratic party, under the leadership of President Roosevelt, is in no sense a Hearst party. As Villard well says, on account of certain happenings at the Democratic convention in 1932, the attack on the Hearst influence in national affairs must come from other sources as well as the Democratic party. It is common knowledge that it was the Hearst influence four years ago which gave the nomination to Franklin Roosevelt.

John Nance Garner was Hearst's choice for the presidential nomination and it was another Hearst man, Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, who, after the Roosevelt forces had agreed to the nomination of Garner for vice president, abandoned Al Smith and insured the selection of Franklin Roosevelt. The President long ago broke with Hearst and, according to reliable report, Garner wants nothing to do with him.

The Eastern writer does not mince words. He declares men and women throughout the country are joining the fight against Hearst and, further, that the publisher is a fascist who is quite capable of doing his best to overthrow American institutions if he thinks thereby he can preserve for his children his enormous fortune, obtained by debasing the public taste and morals.

One phase of the more or less muddled political situation is worth a word or two. Will the candidacy of William Lemke, standard bearer of what one commentator has called the "amorphous nonentity," the Union Party, hurt Roosevelt or Landon the most?

The Republicans believe, or profess to believe, that Lemke will pull liberal, and farmer support away from President Roosevelt. Keen analysts point out, however, that Lemke is in no sense a liberal, as he is militarist and isolationist in his thinking. In fact, the Union Party platform is so reactionary in parts, some critics say, it might have been written by Hearst.

As the Non-Partisan League of the Labor hosts is working solidly for President Roosevelt there seems to be small chance for Lemke cutting in appreciably on labor votes.

The Union Party head appears to have no better chance of corraling the farm vote. It must be kept in mind Lemke failed to win the support of the National Farm Holiday Association, on which he counted.

DALY CITY CLUB IS DEFEATED BY FRESNO TIGERS

Listless Game Results Through Excessive Heat In Valley Town

STATE LEAGUE STANDINGS (Second Half)

Santa Cruz	0	5	000

The Daly City Tanforan baseball team journeyed to Fresno, last Sunday, to engage the Tigers of that city in battle.

The heat was terrific, registering 110 degrees in the shade. The change from the salubrious climate of the bay district to the intense baking atmosphere of the valley evidently had its effect on our home boys, as they failed on several occasions to snap into action when a little more pep would have resulted in additional markers on the score board.

However, they played a creditable game and no doubt would have won the contest if the weather had been more moderate.

The fact that Daly City outthit Fresno would indicate that breaks had some influence on the final result.

Stevens, recently acquired pitcher of the Daly City Tanforans, acquitted himself in fine style, although the heat affected his work to some extent, resulting in many walks. He was especially effective in the pinches, checking the Fresno boys without a score in two innings after they had loaded the hassocks, once before a batter had been retired.

Our home town second sacker, Bill Kirby, was spiked by Wygant of Fresno in the second frame and was forced to retire from the game. This unfortunate incident, no doubt, was largely responsible for our loss, as Kirby had on his batting togs, having batted out two hits in his first two times at bat.

The score:

DALY CITY ROD AND GUN CLUB

(By "Bill" Grantham)

The Daly City Rod and Gun Club held their second annual picnic at Martin's Beach, last Saturday and Sunday, and it was a great success. Amusements, all day long, entertained both young and old. Events for the little ones were pie contests, races, etc., the sucker contest for married ladies, the race for plump ladies, races for their men, fat men, cigarette races in fact races and contests for all ages, sexes and weights.

There were prizes of all kinds, from elaborate surf and light tackle outfits to pop guns for the kiddies. Which brings to mind that we owe a debt of gratitude to the Daly City Record for the publicity given our affair, also to all the generous merchants who got behind us and donated so generously.

Coffee and silver smelts were served free to all (cooked as only Watts knows how). No accidents marred the perfect outing, which was a repetition of last year's event. "Doc" Kost was present, as usual, to take movies of all the doings.

Particular interest was shown in the "Grudge" race between "Kewpie" Ennis and "Battling Kid" Bodien. Their first race was a dead heat. The interest was at fever heat when the gladiators were revived or awakened and started the second heat. Amid thunderous cheers of the partisans of each contestant the race was declared a draw, as each man had collapsed at the finish line. Only the Magic Eye of the movie camera will prove the winner of this race. Now the "Sucker" contest was held, being won by Miss Frances Rickmann, after 47 minutes 17 seconds of breath taking, neck breaking effort. Perspiration poured from the brows of these Amazons as the finish was approached, until finally with one last desperate effort the last drop was taken and our heroine was crowned the winner. It is rumored one of the entrants was eliminated by the premature explosion of the nipple on her bottle. Movies will be shown Friday, August 22, of these doings. Needless to say there will be a crowd.

LESSON SERMON OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"God shall send forth his mercy and his truth." These words from Psalms comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, July 26, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Truth." Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "For every one that doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved. But he that doeth truth cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifest, that they are wrought in God" (John 3: 20, 21).

The following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "It is false to say that Truth and error commingle in creation. In parable and argument, this falsity is exposed by our Master as self-evidently wrong" (p. 539).

FOUR HORSEMEN BEATEN IN PLAY

The halcyon days when Notre Dame's colorful Four Horsemen held the spotlight are still fond memories of football fans, but in theater goers minds this famous quartet has been supplanted by a famous trio, the rollicking Three Horsemen who gallop through "Three Men on a Horse" for a touchdown. The international laugh hit is gathering crowds to the Alcazar Theater in San Francisco at every performance and is creating no end of merriment and hearty laughter.

"Three Men on a Horse" is to race track fans what the big game between Stanford and California is to football fans. It represents the hilarious and exciting climax of the racing season and is attracting race track followers, as well as everyone who loves to see and hear a comedy that has been the biggest sensation since "Abie's Irish Rose," from all communities adjacent to San Francisco.

In this splendid company of funsters which Henry Duffy has brought to the Alcazar are many who have appeared in the play for the past year and a half throughout the country and includes Chester Clute, Marjorie Cameron, Frank Milan, Edward Colebrook, Frank Otto, Jean Reno, Julie Dillon, Phoebe Clark, Kernan Cripps, William Jeffrey and Eddie Waller and John Alexander.

THE SOCIETY OF PENNSYLVANIA

As in the year 1911—four years prior to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition—there is now a movement afoot to organize the Society of Pennsylvania; and a call has been sent out through various publications, locally and throughout the larger cities and towns in Northern California, requesting any native of Pennsylvania to kindly forward his or her name to the organization committee which is launching this society.

Such an institution was first organized in 1911 and gave widespread publicity to the relatives, friends and acquaintances of the respective members to visit the 1915 Panama-Pacific International Exposition; and from a nucleus of less than 25 who met the call at that time, over 2900 members became interested in this work within four months from its inception.

Any native of Pennsylvania who wishes to join in the movement above outlined may send his or her name to the organization committee at 444 Market street, suite 115, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for an invitation to be present at the organization of this delightful institution.

EXPERIENCED HOUSEWIFE CLUB

(By Maude Larue Ives)

Mrs. F. C. Davies, 369 Knowles avenue, joined our club by sending in the following recipe:

Picnic Sandwiches

Chopped ham or bologna, two dill pickles, one small can minced olives, five hard boiled eggs, and parsley. Run all ingredients through the meat grinder. To this mixture add mayonnaise and you have a delicious sandwich spread. If using bologna, about a quarter's worth will be sufficient.

Plum Jam

(From Mrs. H. Elmers, 137 Miriam street).

Six pounds of plums, six pounds sugar, two pounds raisins, one pound walnuts, four or five oranges, including rind (put through meat grinder). Boil all ingredients together two hours. When nearly done add nuts. This jam is good eaten with cold meats.

Household Suggestions

A few whole, cloves in the kettle of fat give doughnuts a nice flavor.—From Elaine Hughes, 153 Alexander avenue.

To improve its flavor, add a dozen nasturtium buds to the vinegar in your vinegar cruet.

Jelly bags are nicest made out of flannel.

If custard curdles, whip for a few minutes with an egg beater and it will become smooth.—From The Farmer's Wife.

Work Easers

Equal parts of ammonia and spirits of turpentine will take paint out of clothing, no matter how hard and dry it may be. Saturate the spot two or three times and then wash out in soap suds.—From The Farmer's Wife.

Within the next few weeks a list of our club members will be printed in these columns. These names appearing in the near future will constitute our charter members, so if your recipe reaches the Experienced Housewife Club, Daly City Record, before this list is printed you, too, will be a charter member.

It is picnic time and sandwiches, salads, meat loaf and ever so many suggestions and work easers can be used in preparing lunches. Won't you help this column to grow by sending in your recipe? It in turn will help you—just watch and see.

CARELESS DRIVING HABITS REVIEWED

Accident records consistently show that a majority of the drivers who get into trouble are neither physically defective nor ignorant of traffic laws. When a person first learns to drive an automobile, usually he is alert and careful, but as his skill in driving increases a tendency towards carelessness often develops.

A statement issued by the California State Automobile Association says:

"Bad driving habits lead directly to carelessness, which in turn leads to danger. This is illustrated by the driving practices of many experienced drivers. Principal among careless habits acquired by drivers are:

"Failure to obey traffic laws; to observe stop signals and other warning signs; to practice highway courtesy; to give the correct hand signal; to reduce speed at potential danger points, such as view-obstructed intersections, blind curves, crests of grades, and points where pedestrians may be crossing to keep in the proper traffic lane.

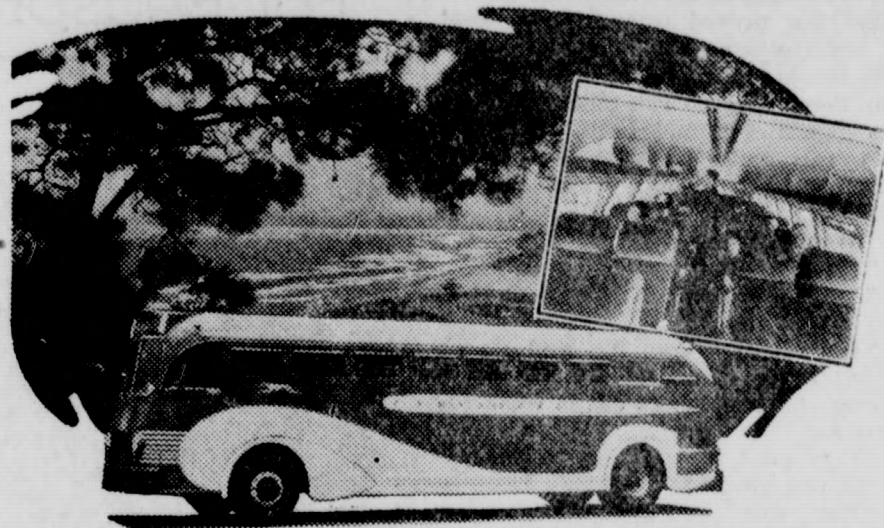

"Related to carelessness is another group of actions, some of which are the result of absent-mindedness. They include turning to converse with persons in the rear seat; stepping on the starter with the car in gear; failing to drive off the traveled portion of the highway for repairs or tire changes; forgetting to turn front wheels to the curb and set the hand brake when parking on a grade; and day dreaming while driving."

KOOTENAY BELLE

Advice from F. M. Black, managing director of Kootenay Belle Gold Mines Ltd., Sheep Creek, states that No. 3 level "A" vein, on which they had been drifting in an easterly direction, entered ground where ore was not expected, but ore has been opened up over a width of 13.6 inches, with values of 3.26 ounces gold per ton.

At this point also another vein was struck, and this also showed good values, running 1.96 ounces gold over a width of 18 inches. Advance in this direction will not be made just now, as it is intended to put up a raise from "A" vein.

LATEST IDEA IN BUSES

Patrons of Pacific Greyhound Lines will enjoy new thrills in bus travel when they ride in the latest motorcoach creation. These "super-buses" represent the most recent developments in bus construction. Below is shown one of the fleet of 50 ultra modern coaches recently put in service by Pacific Greyhound Lines. With motor installed in rear, the passenger compartment is insulated from motor noises and vibration and all fumes and exhaust gases are shut out. Above is depicted the interior of the bus with unique seating arrangement for 36 passengers above the level of the six foot high aisle which runs the length of the car. THREE MILLION FORD V EIGHTS NOW ON ROAD

The 3,000,000th Ford V-8 rolled off the assembly line at the River Rouge plant of the Ford Motor Company at Dearborn last week, to establish a new sales record and mark another important milestone in the history of this great industrial enterprise.

And the 1,000,000th Ford V-8 was also the 1,000,000th Ford V-8 manufactured since June 13th of last year—a million car year for the world's leading automobile manufacturing company!

This was a record accomplishment of which Ford Motor Company executives may well be proud, because in the opinion of trade leaders, it marked complete public acceptance of the Ford V-8 principle of design and construction and justified Henry Ford's confidence that the multi-cylinder car with its greater power and flexibility would become the outstanding favorite with the buying public if offered to them in the low-priced field.

During the darkest days of the depression, while other automobile builders and executives were doubting the future of the automobile business—and in fact of American business in general—Henry Ford never lost confidence. In fact, the sage of Dearborn went to work with a will—and many millions of dollars—to bring out a new model with exceptional quality, with a new engine of exceptional performance and that model was the now famous Ford V-8. Motor men doubted that the public—which was then six cylinder minded, would ever accept an eight cylinder car. But Ford knew his public as well as his motor cars.

In the short space of time, since the introduction of the Ford V-8, it proved its speed, its power, its economy, its long-life, in such conclusive fashion and such sensational manner that during the last twelve months it has been America's fastest selling and most popular car regardless of the price!

With three million Ford cars on the highways of America and with one million of them manufactured during the last twelve months, Ford has again scored a triumph for his genius as a builder and won complete justification of his complete confidence in America.

PEACE VOICES MAY YET BLAST DOWN MOCKERS

When Ordinary Folks Of The World Start They Usually Finish

It is never quite safe to sneer when the ordinary, undistinguished folk of the world roll up their sleeves and set out to get something which seems utterly impractical and unattainable.

The odds are that they will fail to get it, but there is always a chance that they will decide that this time they really mean it; and when they do, there is no power on earth able to stand in their way.

The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, for instance, has set out to get 50,000,000 signatures to a petition calling on all governments to settle international difficulties peacefully and to start disarming at once.

This is just the kind of visionary and impractical stunt that can set the world-wise jeering.

It is so easy to prove that disarmament is quite impossible in this stage of civilization; so easy to show that rows between nations must be settled by force and that all the hopeful petitions in the world can't change hard facts.

Nevertheless, there is one point to remember.

The 50,000,000 who will sign this petition are, in the last analysis, the people who have to get in there and pitch when the war drums start beating.

If they should at last make up their minds that it was all a mugg's game and that they would have no more of it at any price, the statesmen of the world would discover pretty rapidly that a new factor had entered into the old equation.

They'd discover it, or they'd cease to be statesmen.

The world has a warlike aspect nowadays, but there are straws to show that the wind really lies in a different quarter.

Response of the ordinary people of the world to the League of Nations campaign, the votes that are recorded whenever people are given a chance to say what they think about war—these things show that the world's potential cannon fodder has ideas of its own.

For people aren't really as stupid as their rulers believe.

They have not forgotten 1914.

If they once find their voice, we may yet hear a world-wide chorus

THE BANK OF AMERICA WILL GIVE DIVIDEND

Los Angeles Meeting Hears Glowing Reports Of Position Of Institution

Directors of Bank of America National Trust & Savings Association, meeting in Los Angeles last week, declared a special dividend of $1,000,000, or 50 cents a share on 2,000,000 outstanding shares of capital stock.

The special dividend to be paid in July, is in addition to the two quarterly dividends totaling $3,000,000 voted at the board meeting held March 10.

Directors of Bank of America (California), the associated state bank, declared the second quarterly dividend of 1936 in the amount of $25,000. Transamerica Corporation owns 99.65 per cent of the stock of the national bank and 98.98 per cent of the stock of the state bank.

A. P. Giannini, chairman of the board, presided at this meeting.

Reports were made that during the month the volume of automobile financing and personal loans was the largest in the history of the institution, while substantial progress had been made in portable equipment loans.

Giannini said that portable equipment loans are no longer eligible under the FHA, but Bank of America is continuing to make these loans through dealer co-operation.

The combined total of the above types of installment loans is now in excess of $40,000,000, Giannini said. He added that the bank's experience with these loans has been most gratifying.

addressed to all who sit in high places:

"We have had enough of war.

"If there are international difficulties, get out there and settle them—by compromise, by any across-the-table means you can think of—but settle them.

"If you can't do it, scram and let someone else try it; because we aren't going to do any more fighting."

The biggest mistake anyone can make right now is to underestimate the force of the world-wide sentiment for peace.

And this peace-petition business—it may be impractical and visionary, but there is just a chance that it may touch off a trumpet blast fit to knock down the walls of Jericho.—Vancouver Sun.

CHAPTER XI

"Who murdered Mike Kelly?... Pat—darling—was it you?"

The Globe had answered the question, but, in Southampton, Barry Gilbert held this girl-of-all-girls in his arms, and asked it again.

For a moment, she stared at him, dazed and inert, and then she pushed him away.

"Let me sit down, please," she said, coldly.

She remained standing, however, when Barry released her, though she still clung to the chair at which she had stopped when she came into the room. "Do you really think I could kill anyone?" she asked, with just a trace of amusement tempering the wonder and resentment in her tone. "But, of course, I know why you think it. My father said he couldn't tell the truth because of a woman. The woman was my dead mother."

"I'm sorry—" Barry began.

"It doesn't matter," the girl interrupted. "Nothing much matters now. Peter says this evening's Globe completely clears young Ridder, and that they'll probably release him tomorrow. That's all you want, isn't it. And, if you don't mind, I'll go upstairs to my father. He's really ill."

She had closed the door to the hall after her and Barry opened it.

"Can I do anything?" he asked lamely.

"No, I don't think anybody can," Pat answered. "Nothing father or I could say now would help Morano, or anybody. Is Evans outside?"

"Yes."

"Then, of course, you'll see Peggy. Her worries are over. Please tell her how glad I am, and that I'll phone later about Jacky."

They were in the hall by this time and the butler appeared on the landing.

"Will you come to your father, Miss?" he said, quietly.

"I'm coming," Pat replied, just as quietly and, without looking at Barry again, turned and ran up the stairs.

Well, that was over—along with everything else. "I made a clean sweep while I was at it," Barry told himself, ruefully, on his way to the hospital. "What did I have to shoot off my mouth for, just at the last minute? 'My dead mother.' Three words, and my whole train of suspicion went off the rails."

It had taken Harwood barely more than 24 hours to get his man. "He certainly worked fast," Barry paid mental tribute; "once he'd identified that voice on the phone." Some time before the evening papers would reach Southampton. What was the difference? "Nothing much matters now," Pat had said, and it didn't. They'd probably release young Ridder tomorrow, and, two days later, old Ridder'd be in New York. "I've got plenty to do," Barry said to himself, and to Evans, "I've had a cable from Mr. Ridder. He's on the Bremen, arriving Saturday. You'd better get your wife back to town."

They were at the hospital now, and Evans made no reply.

Peggy came into the reception room. "I can't stay," she began. "Jacky's in a good deal of pain. The doctor's up there. He says everything's all right, but, somehow, I'm worried."

"Can you stand a bit of good news?" Barry asked.

"I don't know. I haven't had any in so long—"

"It's about Jack."

He wanted to "break it gently," but Peg couldn't wait.

"He's—What is it? Just another clue? Or—Go on, please!"

"They've arrested Morano. Peter phoned Judge Hamblidge. He says Jack'll be out tomorrow."

Peg didn't move.

At least her body didn't but she ran her tongue over her lips, and her hands opened and closed spasmodically.

After a moment: "No foolin'?" she said.

It was an absurd thing to say, but, in a long experience with suffering, Barry had learned that just such things are said under stress.

"No foolin'."

Tears came into the girl's eyes, and flowed down her cheeks.

"It's in tonight's Globe," Barry told her. "The papers aren't here yet, but I'll ask Evans to bring you one. There doesn't seem to be any possibility of mistake. I'll go in to town by the first train in the morning. I'll take care of everything, and keep in close touch with you."

"Thanks," Peggy said.

One syllable, but Barry thought he had never heard so much praise and gratitude before. His own eyes were threatened with moisture, so he declared, "You'd better get back to the boy. Pat's going to phone later, and I'll ring up tonight. That's all now."

And he left the room as abruptly as Pat had left him, a few minutes ago.

"Home?" Evans asked.

Barry nodded. That word was the last straw.

"Anything else, sir?" Evans inquired, in front of the Ridder house.

"Yes, please. The instant the evening papers get to Southampton, will you bring me a copy of the Globe, and take one to Mrs. Rogers?" He gave the chauffeur a quarter. "Kelly's murderer's under arrest," he continued, "and we're through sleuthing. You'll find it all in the Globe."

"Yes, sir."

Evans was thinking of something else.

"You understand—about Mrs. Evans?" Barry asked.

"Yes, sir." A pause. "You ain't staying here yourself, I take it."

"I'm leaving tomorrow."

"I was wondering," Evans said, "would you like us to come with you?"

"Very much," Barry answered, "but it can't be done."

"You ain't always going to live in a hotel—begging your pardon, sir. Mrs. Evans is a mighty good cook."

"Thanks," Barry returned, "but my cooking's going to be provided by the state of New York. You may as well know the truth, Evans. I'm not Mr. Ridder. Never was. I jimmied my way into this house for a night's shelter, and then you and Willets came, and thought I was Ridder, and I let you go on thinking so. The game's up now. The boss gets back Saturday, and what happens then is anyone's guess."

Evans said, "Yes, sir."

"That's all, except I'd be glad if you'd tell Willets, and the rest. It'll save me introducing the subject."

"Yes, sir."

"And better stand by tonight. I may have to drive back to the hospital."

"Yes, sir... I was wondering—"

Barry grinned.

"You do a good deal of that, don't you?"

I was wondering how you'd like to go to my sister's. You know—where I live in town. You could lay low there a while, and then slip away somewhere."

"That's swell of you," Barry responded. "Much obliged. But I think I've done all the slipping that's good for a man. Tell Willets, when you get a chance, and remember to bring me the Globe."

It was close on to five o'clock then, and "plenty to do" before dinner. Willets wasn't about—luckily. Barry let himself in with his key, and ran up to his room. Should he pack first, or get the rest of it out of the way?

He decided to begin with "the rest of it."

From a long envelope, in his inside pocket, he took all his vouchers. Then, on a sheet of note paper, he wrote, "Received... Cash $200." Beneath that, he listed the check from Mrs. Ridder, and "board, lodging, etc." Un-

"That Leaves My Account Straight," Barry Thought.

der "Disbursed," he credited himself with the same check, which had been banked for Peggy, and with whatever sums he had given her, and a few minor expenditures. "That leaves my account straight," Barry thought. "Except for unlawful entry, tampering with the mails, and pretending to be somebody I wasn't."

It left his bank account far from straight. When he'd subtracted "Disbursed" from "Received," and made out his check for the balance, the result was a rather startling overdraft. "All right," Barry said. "I'll sell out my wardrobe. Studs, and cuff-links, and things. I guess I won't need 'em any more."

He wanted—terribly—to write a letter to Mrs. Ridder. It would have begun, "Dear Mother: (Not mine, of course.)" That was too maudlin. "Me: I'm just a sob-sister." Barry berated himself, tucking his accounts, accompanied only by his check, into an envelope, and inscribing it, "Mrs. John Clarke Ridder, Addressed." He propped the envelope against a calendar, and, for a moment, sat looking at it. "I wish I could find my mother," he had thought, his first morning at Southampton. He wished it even more fervently now, after all these weeks of "make believe."

"I've got to write Pat," he decided, at last. "I certainly owe her an apology, and a 'good-by.'" This letter certainly mustn't be "maudlin."

"Dear Pat," he started. "Dear Pat: (I suppose I should write 'Miss Hamblidge' now, but I can't.) You wouldn't let me say I was sorry for what happened today, but I am. I won't try to excuse myself. You'll forget it, I hope, as quickly as you'll forget everything else in this grotesque association. I won't forget. You're the real lady I ever knew. So this is thanks and good-by to you and your father, and—most sincerely trusting that your worries, like Peg's, are over—I remain always respectfully, Barry Gilbert."

Packing proved complicated. Most of his clothing—paid for long ago—was out here, and had to be taken in. But there was no suit-case. Neat, to the end, Barry folded his belongings into two tailor's boxes. He hadn't quite finished folding when Willets knocked.

"Evening paper, sir."

"Thank you."

"And your key, sir. You left it in the front door."

"You'd better keep it. And there's a letter for Mrs. Ridder on the desk there. I'd like her to get it when she arrives."

"Very good, sir. Dinner at seven?"

"If you please."

That was all. No reference to Barry's packing, or the confession that—Barry felt sure—had been relayed by Evans half an hour ago. "I'm taking the 7:21 back to town tomorrow morning," Barry said, as Willets was closing the door, but Willets only answered, "Yes, sir," and went on closing it.

Morano hadn't been arrested. So much was clear from the screaming headlines Barry scanned. However, "that ends it," Barry felt sure. "Harwood did a swell job. Why didn't I follow up the number of that cab? It didn't seem of the least importance when the taxi-driving medico gave it to me. I might have known it was, though, when Ernie wrote it down in his notebook."

Dinner was uneventful—with Willets remembering his "position," and behaving as any well-trained butler might have been expected to behave. Afterward, Barry phoned Peg. She had seen the Globe, but was still dubious. "Do you really think they'll let Jack out now?"

"Certainly. They're not going to get that sheet started again on Tammany Hall."

"And it'll be tomorrow, you think?"

"Probably. I'll keep in touch with you," Barry promised, and finished his packing. Then he re-read the Globe story, and marked parts of it—to ponder in town.

Throughout breakfast next morning, Barry wondered whether this remarkable butler could know he was "going for good." "I've left a few parting gifts on my desk," he ventured, at last. "For cook, and everybody. Will you take care of 'em?"

"Yes, sir."

"I shan't be back. I suppose Evans told you."

"Yes, sir."

That was too much.

Barry said, "Well, what do you think about it?"

"That's not for me to say, sir. My place is to obey orders. I've tried to do that, sir. If I've made a mistake. It hasn't been for want of trying."

"Your mistake was quite natural," Barry reassured him. "You'd been told you'd find young Mr. Ridder here, and you found me. I said I was young Mr. Ridder. That seems to let you out."

"Yes, sir."

Willets hesitated.

"Anyway, that wasn't the mistake I had in mind, sir. That was a natural mistake. I thought you were a gentleman. I still think so. It's five after seven, sir."

Barry just made the train. At Southampton, he bought a morning paper, and read of Morano's death. Even the conservative Times regarded that as the end of the case against Rogers. "Night Club Owner, Accused of Kelly Murder, Killed Resisting Arrest," its headlines began, and ended with, "Move to Free Rogers Expected Today." Barry pored over both stories—that in the Times and that in last night's Globe—all the way to New York. "Well," he reflected, "one of my suspects was guilty, anyway. Peter Winslow can't laugh that off."

And, suddenly, he let the newspaper fall, and leaned forward, with his wrists on his knees.

"It's queer though," he said, almost aloud, to the click of the wheels. "Very queer. Very damned queer."

At the station, he stopped for a timetable. "Is there one," he asked, "that gives all the trains out of here?"

The man grinned at him, thrusting forward three thick folders.

Ten o'clock found him at Winslow's office.

"Mr. Winslow won't be in today," Peter's secretary announced. "Mrs. Winslow had a bad heart attack last night. So bad that Mr. Winslow telephoned to the Hamblidges. They're with Mrs. Winslow now."

"Was that your last news?"

"No. Mr. Winslow called up half an hour ago to say that Mrs. Winslow's a little better."

"Had he seen this?"

Barry indicated the headline in the Times.

"Yes. He talked to Mr. Colton about it. Mr. Colton's one of the young men in the office, you know. He's gone to the district attorney to ask for Roger's release. Mr. Winslow said, if you called I was to tell you that would be only a matter of hours. Should you like us to phone you when there's anything certain?"

"Please. I suppose there's no use of my going to the Tombs now?"

"Not much. Mr. Colton's going there from the district attorney's. We'll phone you."

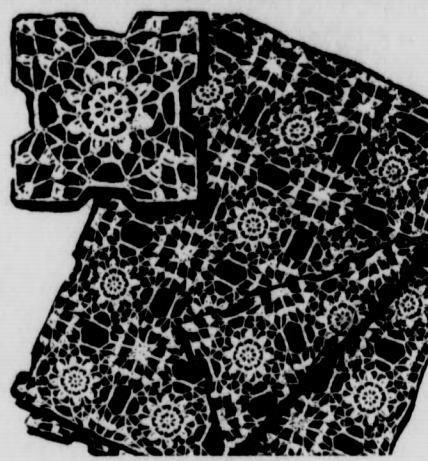

Barry phoned Peggy, and then strolled across Forty-second street. It was a delightful morning, and his rather comic bundles had been dispatched to his hotel from the station.

"No sense in my following 'em yet," Barry told himself. "I don't want to sit around that cursed room all day."

ATTORNEY JOINS IN PRAISE OF JUDGE COTTON

Hall C. Ross, prominent Hillsborough and Redwood City attorney and member of one of San Mateo County's pioneer families, joined in tribute today to Aylett R. Cotton, as superior judge of this county. Judge Cotton is asking the county electorate to retain him on the bench at the election August 25.

Like Ross, Judge Cotton has been a resident of this county for many years, and in commenting on the judge's candidacy for return to the bench, Ross, known as one of the outstanding members of the Peninsula legal profession, said:

"It has been my pleasure to know Judge Cotton for the many years we have been virtual neighbors on the Peninsula. He is one of the best known men in the profession, and I commend him for the service he has done on the bench during the past year and a half.

"As a practicing attorney of this county, and a member of its Bar association, I know Judge Cotton to be a man of high integrity and fairness. Gladly do I recommend that the people of San Mateo County retain him as superior judge."

Judge Cotton was home today from his annual vacation, prepared to participate, as much as his duties allow, in the campaign to retain him as judge. Those familiar with the county political situation today said Judge Cotton undoubtedly would poll the largest vote cast for any candidate in the coming election.

SUPERVISORS GET COMPLAINT ABOUT WATER

Brisbane Resident Scores Distributing Companies For Poor Service

In a complaint filed with the County Board of Supervisors, Monday, Jack Bratton, resident of Brisbane, complained that he was unable to obtain water service from the local utilities. The trouble, it seems, is caused by his home being above the gravity line of one company and outside the authorized territory of the other.

The Henry system, which supplies the upper territory of the community by tanks and booster pumps, is unable to serve Bratton, as his residence is outside their territory. The Linde gravity system, in whose territory Bratton lives, is unable to serve Bratton from their lines due to the elevation; however, they have offered to take a service from the Henry Company at retail prices and re-sell at the same price. According to Ted Linde, operator of the lower system, the operators of the other line refused to give him service. That the Henry system is attempting to invade territory that rightfully belongs to him was claimed by Linde in a statement this week.

Who will serve Bratton and several others in similar circumstances rests entirely with the Railroad Commission, before whom Linde has placed the matter. In the meanwhile residents will continue to carry water from neighbors, despite the fact that Linde has trenched 400 feet for the laying of a line which will relieve the situation, within 24 hours, should he be able to obtain a service from the other company.

Bratton's complaint to the County board was referred to the county engineer and health officer.

FIRE BREAKS OUT IN GARAGE

Local firemen answered a two alarm call, last Saturday morning. The blaze occurred at 6235 Mission street, in a garage operated by Claude Watson.

A truck belonging to the San Francisco Glass Company, which was being filled with gasoline, suddenly burst into flames, according to Watson, causing an explosion.

Tools used for repairs, the doors and roof of the garage were damaged.

George's Grill next door was considerably damaged by smoke, as was his electric sign.

Several lines of hose were soon laid and the flames were brought under control in a short time.

Members present were Mesdames D. Burdick, A. Hammock, A. Smith, L. Bryant, C. Scott, G. Coolidge, L. Thompson, A. Marshall, R. Appleton, Shreves, H. Headwell and L. Nelson, also a number of invited guests.

Three Year Old Tied Ball Game To Be Replayed Next Sunday

The American Legion Post No. 410 and the Veterans of Foreign Wars No. 2044 will hold their third annual picnic at Vallemar Park Sunday, July 26, at which time they will try to break up the tied score between the Veteran organizations.

Chairman Collins of the V. F. W. and Chairman Jakobsen of the Legion, together with their committees, have been working hard to make this a grand success and an enjoyable one for all visitors, whether Veterans or not.

In addition to the ball game, there will be various kinds of races, dancing from 1 to 6, liquid refreshments; free coffee, so bring your lunch. Free ice cream for the kiddies and a lovely park to park your car in.

Vallemar Park, for the information of those who do not know, is down the Skyline—take road toward Salada, turn left past Sharps Park about one and one quarter miles. Just watch for the direction signs. Children under 15 free and gate prizes.

Remember, you do not have to be a Veteran to come to our joint picnic and get in on the free coffee, ice cream and gate prizes.

Saturday evening, July 25, Daly City Post No. 410 will hold a dance at the hall at 474 San Diego avenue, at which time the drawing will take place for the fifty piece silver set. Who will be the lucky one?

Guests present were Mrs. H. Hutchings and son Harry Jr., Mrs. E. Domenici and daughter Grace Marie, Mrs. G. Morgan and sons Roy and Verlin, Mrs. E. Rogers, Mrs. A. Cameron and son Raymond, Misses June Lohneis, Barbara and June Bernardino and Master Richard Gerrans.

THINKS IT HUMANE TO ASSIST ERRING

Justice should be tempered with mercy.

There is no greater advocate of this principle than Superior Judge Aylett R. Cotton, who seeks re-election in the August primary election.

Public records reveal Superior Judge Cotton as a magistrate who handles criminal matters with firmness and deep understanding.

JUDGE AYLETT R. COTTON

Carefully weighing the evidence as presented to his court, Superior Judge Cotton bases judgment on the facts of law and yet, with it all, he is humane.

Wherever there exists the chance of rehabilitation of an individual, who, because of environment or circumstances, has followed the wrong course in life's road, Superior Judge Cotton is not only ready to pass judgment but, also, to lend a helping hand in placing the unfortunate back in his rightful place in society.

Superior Judge Cotton's many friends cite this magistrate's firm but sympathetic attitude toward the unfortunate as one of the many reasons why he should be re-elected to the bench.

Of Superior Judge Cotton they say: He is firm but merciful.

He is exacting in the law's requirements but tolerant nevertheless.

He is truly representative of American justice.
